

#71 Crawford Street,
Newark, N. J.,
July 1, 1942.

Mr. Maxwell Manning,
1216 McKinley Ave.,
Pleasantville, N. J.

Dear Manning:

I am writing to enclosed you this check in case you need fare to Newark. I am unable to write you an additional check for your salary, as it would complicate the bookkeeping too much, and I would be unable to explain to the Internal Revenue Collector two checks for your salary for this month. Even though you have been away from the team all week and do not plan to rejoin them until Friday your salary is being continued, in view of this fact, you could easily come to Newark and pick your pay envelope up. Sorry to be unable to accommodate you.

Very truly yours,

EM:CCJ